

I believe the minimum wage should be set at the Living Wage, which some companies are already doing. It is not a great deal more, and in a lot of cases I don't believe that higher ranking members of staff would need a big rise, if any, and would also increase tax revenues and decrease benefits. This would in my opinion benefit employees, employers and government departments alike, with very little threat of price hikes.

Sent from Mail for Windows 10