

hello about the hourly rate, I'm not concerned, but my wife, I've been working for two years in a hotel and it still has a minimum of 9.55 per hour, the hotel's owner does not even think about increasing the payouts. and the worst thing is that employers in Ireland have learned to pay the minimum, and if you do not like it, the door is open. when I came to this country in 2004, it was not. women in factories earned 12, 13 eu an hour, it is a pity that Ireland is becoming a country where employers use people for cheap work.
